ACSA announces 2017 Snowmobile Family of the Year

At the 49th International Snowmobile Congress, Mike and Claudia Irwin from Hartford, New York were named the ACSA Snowmobile Family of the Year. The Irwins have been involved in organized snowmobiling since the early 1970's.

The Irwins regularly participate in club and county association events, as well as the New York State Snowmobile Association Annual Forum. They are also very involved in the club trails, from securing land owner permission to re-routes and trail maintenance. Together, the Irwins can often be found in a groomer smoothing out the trails for other riders.

Getting youth involved and educated has also been a priority for the Irwins. For over 20 years, the Irwins have been teaching tomorrow's riders. Among those riders have been their children, grandchildren and their great grandson.

"Promoting safe and responsible snowmobiling has always been the first mission for the Irwins" stated New York State Snowmobile Association President Rosanna Warner. "They attended the 1st NY Snowmobile Workshop and have attended nearly every one since. The Irwins are faithful supporters for all ideas and actions that benefit snowmobiling".
